THE STATUE OF BAVARIA AT MUNICH. -

From Mr. Fulton's letter.]-Among the various wonders of Art in Munich is the Hall of Fame and the colossal female figure, in bronze, called the Bayaria. This statue is on a marble base, and is reached by forty-eight broad steps leading to the level on which the pedestal stands. The figure is fifty-four feet high, and from the feet to the top of the wreath, held making the whole height pinety six feet. Sixty steps lead up through the pesdestal to the feet of the figure, and from the knee an iron staircase of sixty feet enables the curious to ascend

THE HUMANE INVENTION OF THE McCLURE'S SELF-ADJUSTING, ANTI-FRICTION BACK-CHAIN AND TRAVELLER.

Read the following testimonials to its merits: Office Society for Prev. Cru. to Animals,

New York, April 11, 1873. I have seen, and do most unqualifiedly approve of Mr. W. B. McClure's Anti-friction Chain and Traveller, for the use of cart horses, whereby the severe concussions and continual galling incident to the present mode of harnessing draft animals are effectually overcome. This invention should be speedily in general use.

HENRY BERGH, President.

Alexandria, April 9, 1873. I have been using for more than four months the Self-adjusting, Anti-friction Back Chain and Traveller," and take pleasure in testifying that they are a perfect success. The saving in wear of the saddle alone is worth more than the cost of the chain, and the saving in labor and suffering to the norse is mealculable. JOHN LEATHERLAND, Coal Merch't.

inside of the figure to the head, within which two seats, capable of holding six persons are placed. From here, by looking through the eyes of the figure, a view of the beautiful environs and mountains can be obtained. The Hall of Fame, surrounding the statute on three sides, is a temple built in the form of a triple hall, supported by doric columns, which was erected by King Louis the First to receive the the busts of the celebrated Bavarians. It was built 1853, and is 230 feet long, with two advancing wings, each 105 feet long, and is 60 feet in height. The relievas on the two pediments, in each of which are two female figures, with the symbols representing the different races of Bavaria, and various statues adorn the frieze over the architrave. Forty-eight representations referring to the social history of Ba-with lions and sphyoxes, and the inner com-partments with stars. The interior walls are divided into compartments, on which the busts of celebrated Bavarians are placed on consoles, according to the order of time. Up to the present time there are seventy-five busts in position This is undoubtedly the grandest of all modern architectural displays in Europe, and is on a scale that has never never been attempted since the palmy days of Greece and Rome. It varia are placed between forty-four statues of victory. The ceiling of the temple is adorned is not a building, but an open temple, of the same description as the famous Roman temples at l'aestum. The view of this immense statue from the base of the hill on which it stands, with this grand temple in the background, is undoubtedly the most imposing to be found in Europe. Immense as the figure of Bavaria, is magnificent in its proportions, and when viewed from a distance of a few hundred yards, des not look more than ten or twelve feet high world, and came to the conclusion that at this season of the years Bavaria is a very warmhearted maiden. GERMAN STUDENT DUELS .- Your German studen's proper weapon is the Schlager-a parrow strip of soft steel, made razor-shape for some sixteen inches down from the squared-off point, and heavily hilted, like a Scotch claymore. The Schlager is the life of corps system; the corps student, talks, eats, sleeps, drinks Schlager. It and the idea of six persons seating themselves inside of the head seems preposterous. We, however, went up the spiral staircase and look ed through the eyes of Bavaria on the outside forms its code of honor, is the foundation of his social standing and renown. Strange, muses the Western savage, that an overgrown lancet should maintain unimpaired, during hundreds of years, the vitality of an institution whose life blood had else scarce circulated at all. The element of adventure, of danger-literally the seal of blood-has proved stronger than laws, constitutions, principles, or anything else, to bind these young tellows together from age to age. A mutual nose-slitting organization outlasts dy-

But are not duels-even Schlagerduels-ille gal? demand the savage. Yes, and so are prize fights at home, and the law is no less sufficiently maintained. Caught fighting, it goes hard with the intrepid duellist, as of old with the detected thieves of Sparta. But let him appear hext morning in the lecture room with a strip of black court-plaster from nose to ear-the Prclessor tips him a sober wink, and condoles with him that he should have wielded his razor with so unsteady a hand. Among his fellow students his standing is high in proportion as his scars are many. He seeks not to hide them; rather, lest they heal too smoothly, he will caution the surgeon to sew them up loosely, and will drink deep and sleep little for a week thereafter. A certain dauntless hero, who had had his cheek upped open from the corner of the mouth to the ear, laying all the teeth bare, drank himself into insensibility the same night, in spite of the difficulty he must have experienced in keeping his mouth f.om leaking! His scar serves the students by way of Iron Cross-perhaps would hardly be exchanged therefor, being a proof beyond all controversy that the wearer had shed blood, which the cross is not.

Certainly it is a convenience to carry the record one's valor upon the countenance. You have but to face your enemy, and if your nose, say, be wanting, you shall see him trembl. This reminds the savage of a certain pleasant centieman he has met, whose nose begins well but ends at right angles with itself. That man's history is thrilling. A duel-a slash! slash! Ha! the tip of his nose is gone! but where? Search everybody! Ha! behold the dog! he looks suspicious—guilty. The dog is kicked violently—Gods! the nose tip it disgorged; the owner snatches it up-claps it on; hastily does
